

On The Road with The Rabbi Man, Oh Manischewitz!

Thursday, December 15 - 11:00 am

Our road trip for December was supposed to be to the Museum in lower Manhattan to view a traveling exhibit, Operation Finale featuring archival materials from the Mossad about the capture of Adolf Eichmann. I recently found out that the exhibit has been postponed until the summer of 2017 ...

I know it's quite a contrast with what we were supposed to do, but I was able to secure a behind-the-scenes tour of the Manischewitz manufacturing plant in Newark. Manischewitz is the largest producer of kosher food in North America, and we will get a glimpse of commercial food production, kashrut standards, as well as some exposure to their cross-cultural marketing practices.

The tour is free and participants will receive a gift bag containing samples of Manischewitz products.

Space is limited, and reserved on a first-come, first-served basis.

Shul members will receive priority

(I am happy to keep a separate waiting list of friends/guests).

Email or call the Rabbi by Friday, December 9th 201/947-1735 ext 314 - rabbi@geshershalom.org

Each participant must sign a waiver to be submitted in advance of the site visit.
Waivers are available in the synagogue office.
