THE WAITING ROOM by Leah Kaminsky is a multi-generational novel. Leah Kaminsky's wry fiction debut unfolds over a day in the life of a young female physician in contemporary Israel, who must cope with modern threats under the shadow of her parents' horrific wartime pasts. With the looming threats of terror upon us, Kaminsky's book could not be timelier. As Geraldine Brooks, Pulitzer Prize winner says, "THE WAITING ROOM is both haunted and haunting."

About the Author

Leah Kaminsky is the poetry and fiction editor at the Medical Journal of Australia. As both a physician and writer, she conceived and edited Writer, M.D., an anthology of contemporary doctor-writers. She is the author of We're All Going to Die, the award-winning poetry collection Stitching Things Together, and collaborated on the bestseller Cracking the Code.
